Can I jam my phone from using A-GPS while still talking on it?

2019/12/08

Hi ccortez! In fact, you can. If you want to jam A-GPS but continue to talk on your phone then you need to use GPS jammer. This device will block all GPS signals in its working range so A-GPS module of your Sprint CDMA phone will not work. Even if A-GPS module start its work it will be completely useless without GPS signal that works to find your location and A-GPS just makes this process to be faster. As for the phone, I would suggest you to continue using your CDMA phone because in GSM phones their A-GPS modules often combined with GSM modules into one unit so when you break the work of A-GPS there might be some problems with communications. CDMA phones have no such problem thus when you make your A-GPS module useless without GPS signals you will be able to make calls, write text messages, etc.
